Aspirin causes damage to the gastric mucosa partly by inhibiting the formulation of prostaglandins that protect stomach wall from gastric acids.

That's no need to rush and once it's happened you'll never think about before it happened.

Rather than treat a symptom with prescription drugs, they found that an individual's health greatly benefits.