In short, most people spend their days indoors, shielded from bright daylight, and then spend their evenings in too-bright artificial light.

At least Bella doesn't think they are